

Stream Assessments and Sampling

I can provide stream assessments through macroinvertebrate, fish, and habitat surveys. I have conducted numerous studies from small ephemeral and intermittent streams to very large rivers such as the Mississippi, Missouri, and Illinois rivers. I do not retain permits in states year to year, and must receive project description data early, in order to get appropriate collection permits in time for sampling seasons. I currently do not possess certification in any federally listed species such as the American burying beetle surveying. If sufficient interest was provided, I could work towards obtaining certification to assist states in surveying for these endangered species.
